1. List some great qualities related to having this conflict style

2. When is this approach helpful as a leader?

3. When could this approach be less helpful as a leader?

4. What important leadership roles and/or opportunities match well with this skillset?

5. Which of the other styles might you need in your group in order to build an effective team?
Teddy Bear

I just want to maintain the relationship and not hurt the other person’s feelings.

1. List some great qualities related to having this conflict style

2. When is this approach helpful as a leader?

3. When could this approach be less helpful as a leader?

4. What important leadership roles and/or opportunities match well with this skillset?

5. Which of the other styles might you need in your group in order to build an effective team?
1. List some great qualities related to having this conflict style

2. When is this approach helpful as a leader?

3. When could this approach be less helpful as a leader?

4. What important leadership roles and/or opportunities match well with this skillset?

5. Which of the other styles might you need in your group in order to build an effective team?
1. List some great qualities related to having this conflict style

2. When is this approach helpful as a leader?

3. When could this approach be less helpful as a leader?

4. What important leadership roles and/or opportunities match well with this skillset?

5. Which of the other styles might you need in your group in order to build an effective team?
1. List some great qualities related to having this conflict style

2. When is this approach helpful as a leader?

3. When could this approach be less helpful as a leader?

4. What important leadership roles and/or opportunities match well with this skillset?

5. Which of the other styles might you need in your group in order to build an effective team?